Ten Times Table

By Alan Ayckbourn

It's a fete worse than death...

Master of comedy Alan Ayckbourn gives us a front-row seat to the fraught planning and disastrous outcomes of a mutton-headed committee of ten as they put on their small town's first pageant. Battle ensues over the tea and biscuits: a relentlessly patronising grande dame versus a truculent Marxist teacher with his two adoring groupies; the sly and weedy Councillor and his aged, slightly batty mother; the inebriated electrician; the tongue-tied costumier; and a gun-toting, militant anti-Red...

The wittily observed characters on the committee are bound to resonate and include someone you've probably met or immediately recognise. The hilarious proceedings reach a crescendo on pageant day as they try to bring order to the chaos. Pull up a chair and join the fray!
