Yards Apart

by Mary Stone

Mark is retired and spends his days pottering around the garden (which he loves almost to the point of obsession), avoiding the neighbours and scaring off the local cats with his BB gun. When his neighbour Viki literally crashes into his world he's eager to send her packing and return to his quiet, solitary life. But Viki and Mark are destined for a collision course that pits equally entrenched opinions against each other.

Can these two lonely people overcome their differences and help each other when it counts?

SHARKS in the CUSTARD

Liz, Vera and Mair enjoy their cleaning work in the art gallery. It gives them a few hours of peace and quiet every day, away from the noise of the hectic outside world and the unhappy chaos of their home lives. They banter and tell stories. And they also crack jokes about the works of art in their care, in particular the avant-garde art. But they all agree they wouldn't want to work anywhere else.

However, rumours of government cutbacks threaten to upset their cosy regime and they find themselves up to their necks in shark-infested custard!
